Planning answers

Every year, exam boards publish examiner reports that give teachers a report on that year's exams and what went well and what could be developed further. What often features for exams that require a longer written response [English Lit and Lang; history; RS; geography, etc] is that better answers almost always show evidence of planning.

For your revision, plan a series of responses using old exam papers or what your teacher has provided.

Keep the plans simple and clear. Think carefully about the evidence/support/quotes you would use as this also often features in what the examiners say makes for a better answer.
